

Why did FBI Agents feel “hindered” in their investigations of Islamic Terrorism?

Former FBI Deputy Director John O'Neill resigned from Washington headquarters in August 2001, complaining that Big Oil Interests were interfering with his investigation of Saudi Terrorism. Two weeks later, on September 11, he was killed while working at his new job as head of security at the World Trade Center.

Things we need to know about September 11

We Should Ask James Baker

Secretary of Treasury during Iran-Contra and the Chief of Staff during the Gulf War, James A. Baker is now Counsel for the Office of Intelligence Policy. This office advises the Attorney General, FBI, CIA, and the state and defense department about guidelines as well as the legality of domestic and overseas intelligence operations. www.usdoj.gov/oipr
James Baker also works as Senior Counsel to The Carlyle Group, a Washington D.C. investment firm with extensive Saudi ties, including the Bin Ladens.

His law firm, Baker & Botts, is working to assist energy companies in getting contracts for Caspian Sea oil, which will require a pipeline through Afghanistan, in addition to their White Collar Criminal Defense program. www.bakerbotts.com

Meet The Carlyle Group

The Carlyle Group has hundreds of millions of dollars of state and teacher pension funds invested in the defense and telecommunications industries. They have extensive ties to Global Crossing, Enron, and Arthur Andersen, but as a private firm they are not subject to SEC inspection or regulations. Besides Baker, many other former government officials are working for The Carlyle Group including Frank Carlucci, Carlyle Group Chairman Former CIA director and Secretary of Defense during the Iran-Contra affair. Carlucci is also a trustee for RAND, a think tank that is paid to give advice to the federal government. He's also the co-chair for RAND's Middle East Public Policy Advisory Board. Carlucci also watched the September 11 attacks with the Bin Ladens.

George Bush, Sr, Carlyle Senior Advisor

He's also known to advise his son, George W Bush, on matters of foreign policy. New York Times, June 10, 2001

Why are people who profit from war being allowed to make decisions in our government?

October 25, 1999 – The jet carrying golfer Payne Stewart flies off course; air traffic controllers alert the military, who send F-16s to intercept the flight. Response time: 21 minutes

July 16, 2002 – A group of entertainers from India on a flight to New York become excited at seeing the New York City skyline. Flight attendants alert authorities, and F-16s intercept the flight and escort it to the runway. Response time: 17 minutes

September 11, 2001 - Only after both of the World Trade Center towers had been hit and a third hijacked plane was heading for Washington DC did the US military dispatch fighter jets to patrol the skies of our Capitol, and these jets were called in from Langley Air Force base, 130 miles away. The D.C. Air Guard is located at Andrews Air Force Base, less than ten miles from the Pentagon

Why weren't the fighters scrambled from Andrews Air Force Base?

Why weren't they already patrolling the skies of Washington D.C., given the fact that our nation was obviously under attack?

September 11 Families call for independent Probe

Washington Post, June 12, 2002

"About 300 relatives of Sept. 11 victims joined several members of Congress yesterday in calling for the creation of an independent commission to investigate government actions before, during and after the terrorist attacks in New York and Washington.

At a rally held steps from the U.S. Capitol, relatives of those killed during the attacks said the creation of such a commission is the only way to prevent future terrorist strikes and to ensure that their loved ones 'did not die in vain' "

Bush asks Daschle to limit 9-11 investigations

CNN, January 9, 2002

"President Bush personally asked Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle Tuesday to limit the congressional investigation into the events of September 11, congressional and White House sources told CNN. The request was made at a private meeting with congressional leaders Tuesday morning. Sources said Bush initiated the conversation."

Why would anyone not want a thorough investigation of the biggest intelligence and national defense failure in American history?

More unanswered questions:

- Whatever happened with the investigation into pre-9/11 insider trading, the unusual volume of "put options" (bets that a stock will drop) that were sold the week before 9/11 on companies that stood to lose money after the attacks, indicating that someone had knowledge of what was about to happen?
- Why was the Bin Laden family allowed to charter a jet and return to Saudi Arabia before being questioned by the FBI?
- Why did the White House staff start taking Cipro on September 11, more than a month before the anthrax attacks?
- Why was the Pakistani Air Force allowed to airlift hundreds of Taliban fighters out of Kunduz shortly before it fell? MSNBC, November 29, 2001

Very Thin Line: The Iran Contra Affairs

by Theodore Draper
Using Congressional testimony and private depositions, this book reconstructs the Iran-Contra affair, showing how a handful of little-known officials, in defiance of the law and without the knowledge of any other branch of government, took control of U.S. foreign policy
